

TALK ON CITY POLITICS

HANIEL M. RANDELL HERE TO AID REPUBLICAN TICKET.

He Points Out the Importance of Ousting Taggartism on Next Tuesday—Political Notes.

Daniel M. Randell, sergeant-at-arms of the United States Senate at Washington, who has come to Indianapolis in order to cast his vote Tuesday for Mr. Bookwalter and the rest of the Republican candidates in taking a deep interest in the outcome of the election. Colonel Randell was himself a candidate for the mayoralty nomination two years ago and has always kept in close touch with local affairs. His views on the situation, therefore, carry weight.

"I have returned to my home for the purpose of casting my vote for the Republican ticket next Tuesday," he said to a Journal man last night, "and I believe it is the duty, not only of every Republican, but of every citizen who has the best interests of our capital city at heart, to do the same thing."

"It is high time that the party which has had control of the municipal affairs of Indianapolis six years continuously and which has plunged the taxpayers deeper and deeper into debt, should be removed and the books be opened. Our citizens do not, I fear, always appreciate the importance of our local elections. When you stop to think that the officials elected next Tuesday will be charged and empowered to assess and disburse the city's revenues for the next two years, it should appeal to every taxpayer."

"In fact," continued Colonel Randell with increasing emphasis, "the municipal election is the one of all elections that strikes at every citizen's pocketbook. The Republican party is the business man's party and the laboring man's party in national, State and municipal affairs. It is a self-paying party. Too often, and in the present instance, the Democratic party is a debt-making party."

"The debt of the city of Indianapolis has increased under the present Democratic administration about $100,000 in the last year, and I understand that right now they are anticipating the revenues for the first half of the next fiscal year."

"For another reason besides the numerous business reasons, some of which I have given, the coming city election is important. It will have a bearing and influence upon the state election next year. The influence of elections in the capital of the State cannot be overestimated. Next year we will have a state election, which will involve the Legislature that is to choose a United States senator."

"Indiana by reason of her situation is a very potent factor always in national elections. It is therefore all important that the coming city election should result in victory for the Republican party. It will be the first gun fired in the campaign for 1902. No true Republican loving the principles of the party can afford for any personal reasons to stay at home, much less to cast his vote for the Democratic ticket. The issues involved are too important."

MAY USE UGLY TACTICS.

The Democratic Managers Have Given Up All Hope.

It was rumored persistently yesterday that the Democrats, realizing that they had no show to win by fair means this time, and being in a position where they would be utterly unable to manipulate the vote if it had been placed in the ballot boxes, had decided to make an attempt to keep the Republican voters away from the polls by creating riots and starting fights and by stirring up trouble generally. These methods are also expected to demoralize the election boards and create opportunities for crookedness. The Republican election officers, however, have been instructed to avoid trouble of any kind, and Republican managers believe that if the Democrats attempt any of their rowdy methods they will result in their own injury.

Close of Prohibition Campaign.

The prohibitionists will close the city campaign to-morrow night with a final rally in their hall at New York and Alabama streets. Quincy Lee Morrow, one of the national organizers, who lives in this city, will be the principal speaker. He will also be made by John M. Dungan, candidate for mayor, and a number of other candidates.

The leaders of the party confidently assert that their vote will be larger this time than two years ago.

Betting Does Not Waver.

The betting boards indicate that the Democrats have little or no faith in their ability to win at the coming election. At Henry Walker's, at the Edison Hotel bar and at the Orion cigar store the boards are covered with bets of all sizes at odds of 2 to 1 that Bookwalter will be elected. Even money can be had in the amount up to $50 that Bookwalter will have 1,000 plurality, and there are many bets at odds of 1 to 2 that his plurality will reach 3,000.

Joint Newspaper Bureau.

The Indianapolis newspapers will receive election returns next night at a joint bureau, which will be established at No. 31 West Maryland street. The bureau will be in charge of Walter Royce and has the approval of the city chairmen of both parties. Blankets have been sent out to the election officers by the newspapers, requesting them to send returns to the bureau as soon as possible. The bureau can be reached by telephone—Main 372, old company, and 1262, new company.

W. A. Kersey's Statement.

W. A. Kersey, proprietor of the Hotel English barber shop and a life-long Republican, presents a story that has been given circulation to the effect that he is booking Mr. Bookwalter's election. Mr. Kersey says he is a great admirer of Mr. Bookwalter and that while his business prevents him from doing any part in the campaign, he is none the less ardently in favor of the Republican ticket.

Election Supplies.

The election inspectors are expected to call at the office of the city clerk, at the police station, between 9 and 12 o'clock this morning, to get their supplies. If any of them fail to do this the supplies will be sent to them, but they will receive no pay for their services.

Sixth Ward Meeting.

The colored voters of the Sixth ward held a large and enthusiastic meeting last night at Blackford Church, corner Blackford and North streets. Speeches were made by Charles A. Bookwalter, Gurley Brewer and J. H. Low.

TRANSCRIPT IN VANDALIA CASE.

It Is Filed in the Office of Clerk of Supreme Court.

The transcript of the appeal taken by the Vandalia Railroad Company from a judgment recovered against it by former Attorney General Ketcham in the Marion Superior Court about a year ago was filed in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court yesterday. The amount demanded from the railroad was $2,500,000, but Judge Carter's judgment, based on the findings of Special Master Noble C. Butler, was for only $123,950.01. The case is one that in various forms has been in litigation in Indiana for many years. It grew out of a claim that the Vandalia Railroad Company had never effected a complete settlement with the State on account of the per cent of its earnings which it was bound to pay the State after its net earnings had reached a certain figure, under the old special charter which was surrendered in 1873. The attorneys for the railroad company pleaded in the Superior Court that the same matter had been adjudicated by the Supreme Court years ago, but this contention was not allowed by Judge Carter.
